

Primary Prevention for Change Training:

A Community Approach to Promoting Health, Safety, and Equity

Join us for a one day training focused on understanding and analyzing the community factors that shape health, safety, and equity and on how to develop comprehensive strategies. The training will emphasize:

- Sharing practical information and skill building necessary to reduce health inequities: differences in health which are not only unnecessary and avoidable but, in addition, are unfair and unjust.
- Highlighting successful examples from around the country of efforts to change environments, policy, and practices
- Introducing and applying Prevention Institute's nationally recognized tools
- Creating a dialogue among participants about current challenges, opportunities, and potential innovative strategies.

"Prevention is a critical but underutilized strategy to help identify and advance changes that will make a difference in the health of Californians."
—Robert K. Ross, M.D., President & CEO, The California Endowment

"I greatly appreciated the thorough exposure to primary prevention and will definitely be using this lens in my work."
—Participant, Oakland Training, May 2009

"It was great to have open dialogue with everyone and learn about each other's work and perspectives. The training was interactive, informative and very useful for our work. Thank you!!"
—Participant, Los Angeles Training, October 2009

"THANK you! I think your presentation was great, informative, flexible and responsive to our concerns."
—Participant, Boyle Heights Training, June 2010

Made possible with support from the California Endowment's Center for Healthy Communities Health ExChange Academy.